PERSONALIZED FEEDBACK

You will receive personalized feedback based on your results and how they should be interpreted

What did the assessment I took measure?

BEHAVIORAL TRAITS

- Behavioral Traits are commonly observed actions that help define who you are.

INTERESTS

- This section may predict your motivation and potential satisfaction with various jobs.

RESULTS INTERPRETATION

BEHAVIORAL TRAITS

Pace Overall rate of task completion

- Typically, you can act with a sense of urgency when necessary.
- You generally don't mind working at a slightly hurried pace.
- You tend to complete assignments in a timely manner.
- Most likely, you don't enjoy sedentary or repetitive work.

Assertiveness Expression of opinions and need for control

- Situations in which you are held accountable for results tend to motivate you.
- Most likely, you are willing to be more of a leader than a follower.
- Typically, you use direct statements.
- You will likely express yourself with a fair amount of confidence.

Sociability Desire for interaction with others

- You tend to be reserved in some situations, but are also willing to interact with others whenever needed.
- You probably enjoy working by yourself, at least some of the time.
- On occasion, you will probably reach out to others for feedback.
- You can function well without relying on a large network of work relationships.

Conformity Attitude on policies and supervision

- Typically, you are willing to accept guidance and suggestions from others.
- You appear to be friendly and cooperative.
- Most likely, you're willing to conform to company policies without feeling a loss of personal freedom.
- You will usually accept advice and criticism well.

Outlook Anticipation of outcomes and motives

- You may often be skeptical about how well untested ideas will work out.
- You are rarely considered naïve.
- You usually want to know why changes in policies and guidelines were enacted.
- At times, you may consider others' motives carefully, trying to understand their real intentions.

Decisiveness Use of speed and caution to make decisions

- You tend to be cautious, preferring to wait for more information and advice before making your final choice.
- You may find it difficult to make quick or hasty decisions under pressure.
- You likely take a methodical approach to decision making.
- You are capable of making timely decisions but may prefer to deliberate and examine your options.

Accommodation Inclination to tend to others' needs and ideas

- Most of the time, you will take a stand for what you feel is right.
- While you will usually listen to others' perspectives, you will likely stand by your position if you disagree.
- You probably won't let anyone take advantage of you.
- You can be agreeable and cooperative, but you likely don't go along with the group just to make everyone happy.

Independence Level of preference for instruction and guidance

- You generally prefer minimal instruction when carrying out important tasks.
- On occasion, you may want some degree of guidance to make sure you are on the right track.
- Usually, you are self-sufficient and willing to take on new developments or challenges.
- In most situations, you appreciate the freedom to determine how you will get things done.

Judgment Basis for forming opinions and making decisions

- You tend to apply your knowledge of the facts to current problems and situations.
- You typically focus on logic, rather than your own instincts, to make decisions.
- You tend to take an objective view of situations and to minimize your own feelings when formulating your opinions.
- You tend to make objective, factually driven decisions under pressure.

INTERESTS

The assessment you took measured six possible Interests. They are listed below, along with definitions, from the area in which you expressed the most interest to the one in which you expressed the least (any ties are noted).
